History—A Real Fair

the South Water and Recreation Commission, made its home in the Metropolitan Club building in 1928, and waived a serious fire hazard in the common or village green. Although the admissions were collected for the benefit of the Saturday afternoon children, the money passed through the gates and into the hands of the club received a little of the same.

Truly it was a red letter day for the city who had worked nearly three years to accomplish this radical change from the old ways of the lamented Mayor to the new ways of his successors. The street was so crowded that no more fags could be sent down the public highway, therefore it seemed better to let the fair or sick quarters remain open until they could be closed.

Enterprising citizens walked around the corner standard and put through a few

In spite of shaking heads and warnings of calamity, the deal was made and one of the largest earthquakes in the west on record as supposed to have killed and the workers in the mine. It was a real agricultural show with a lot of since for a while the young men of the town have followed associations clinging to the old ways, where the yearly gathering of the young men was strong as a lusty lad, and the vitality of youth burst his way in the air, and overflowed on adjacent hills. The North Waterford fair with horse races on the Lynchville plains and adjacent hills, its flowing freely is no more. The town is growing in a new age and meeting new conditions brought about through the new age.

The World's Fair as a business proposition has not changed, it is still a business basis and it will be a business basis. Its promoters are not going to change. The show will be bigger and better after the show will be in a position to pay larger premiums, provide more attractions, and satisfy an appeal that people of large fairs do not heed.

The new grounds are on the southern ex-side of the Sweden road and the railroad yards west of the church. The structure, known as the Willis-Mason structure, (once owned by Tom Willis and later purchased and the side adjoining the railroad way has a wire fence set along the railroad wall. Two gates are set along the railroad wall leading to the section of the building which are two levels, the lower level the road has the polling court, the exhibition hall, poultry house and a large the sheds. A gradual rise leads to the platform, where the fiddlers held court and a few of parking space furnished a resting place for five hundred ears. Natural reserved seats were found on the slope of the hill and many hunched spectators used the place of vantage during the pulling, Saturday afternoon.

Excellent drinking water, too, was available in a far off corner is collected from the hillside and is sold by the bucket.

Electric pumps installed at the well and Son of South Park. The pumps lead to the little creek and to the raw water in the small. Electric lights about the grounds and buildings are a contribution. The heavy rain, Thursday night made puddles and a few showers planned by the situation doubled and fell and moved on. Raw weather on Friday cooled the enthusiasm and a freeze Sunday morning looked bad with warm sun.

The ticket sellers and band leaders at the gates were Earl Lillaw, Geo. Allen, B. L. Andrews, Charlie Culpin, Gus B. Moore and Arthur Saunders. The bands made regular day banding for money, and the regular day banding money was paid out this and the following night. No deaths were reported in spite of the number of cars that passed through the gates. Hundreds of autos found a resting place on the common and roadsides leading from the square. Dooryards sheltered many of the fields near the grounds had their gates open. Apparently that service was free as parking signs were not in evidence.

The New Hall

The new building provided ample room for the exhibits, but if the show continues for more than a few days, the way, had a good variety of fall hats

Across the way Wales & Hamilton Co. of Bridgton showed Hetrokoles, oil burners, washing machines and cook stoves. In the center a cooling system for milk was by H. Alton Bacon of Bryant Pond under charge of Andrew Eastlund.

Near the entrance was a convenient room used for a ticket office and headquarters for the fair officials.

C. D. Morse was in his customary place as superintendent of the fair, a position he has filled acceptably for many years. He has seen this department outgrow the schoolhouse, a store, the Grange Hall and finally leave the I. O. O. F. dining hall, where it was sheltered for several years. Mrs. Roy Wardwell was his able assistant, a position she has held for four years.

GRANGE EXHIBITS

About one-half the space was used for advantage by four Grange's. William Grange, No. 479, awarded first prize, had its name in silver and green and carried out the color scheme in the decorations. A variety of vegetables, fruit, preserves, jellies, made up the show with fancy articles, patchwork quilts and other needle work for the background. A "Persession" cabinet provided a balled dinner, corn cake, baked apples and cheese and other suggestions for a "land time."

Round Mountain Grange of Albany, as a close second had their name in cedar twigs with red berries for bright color. The space was decorated in pink and green, by Mrs. C. M. Wardwell, Miss. Lilla

Stearns and Mrs. Abner Kimball, who had charge of the exhibit. Farm products predominated with vegetables and fruits brought to the front. A show case had a collection of cake and pies and rows of jellies and clusters of grapes emphasized the food values brought out in the exhibit. Old fashioned yellow corn and traces of sweet corn hung in long trances, near bouquets of cut flowers, harvested just in time.

to escape the freeze, Saturday morning.

Kear Lake Grange, No. 440 of North Lovell, was a new one in the field and was given third place. Oris Leharon had a week to collect the exhibit and put it into place, but put on a creditable show. Of course vegetables from freels to standard shapes and qualities predominated.

OXFORD-FORE STREET

Twitche's Attending Fair—Guests at Mr. Cummings—Honor Roll.

Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher, the blind evangelist of Massachusetts, with Rev. Linwood R. of Mechanic Falls, were supper guests at Mr. Twitche's, Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Edwards of Norway were dinner guests of Flora Cummings, Sunday, Oct. 2.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Jenkins and daughter, Mr. Lillian Arline and son, Robert, of Tipton, called on their aunt, Mrs. Twitche, and Flora Cummings, Sunday, having been to a doctor for a doctor to look after Ken, who is doing nicely, able to attend school and play as though nothing ailed him.

E. E. Twitche went to Portland again Saturday on a business trip. Some Saturday nights Herman Thurlow goes with his folks and some he goes to, according to running conditions of auto. Last Saturday and Sunday he remained on Fore street, though it is understood the auto was towed in. Minor accidents all along this street are common that seemingly no account is given. Harry Packard and his family met with difficulty in front of Roy Stevens' residence. Phoned for Sheriff Fringham, lots of talk and flutters of papers and considerable time spent before the ears with banded tin went their ways. No so with auto that almost got over the crossing by Reynolds' when a freight train hit the rear end and hustled the car, much dilapidated, as far as Leon Twitche's before it stopped. No one injured, apparently. Broken glass, a thrill and on they go as long as the engine works and gas supply holds. Depression is not in it though more than impression is made on many a ear in the mad rush to get somewhere quick.

Miss Agnes Sanborn of Massachusetts spent the week end with her aunts, the Misses Belle and Edith Wilson. Miss Arline Reynolds was home over the week end.

Ray Thurlow was in Mechanic Falls and with his tooth abstracted, Saturday.

Annual Weston Reunion

Of Descendants of James and Sukey Spurr Weston

In 1825 James Weston married Sukey Spurr and set up housekeeping in what is now known as the old James Weston place, which is one of the beauty spots of Maine. A century afterwards their descendants began to gather at the old home for a family reunion which now is a regular yearly event and takes in all the Weston and Spurr clans.

There are many bearing the name of Weston, but the Spurr family is to give a generation ago so far for the most part the Spurr are hyphenated, the name occurring on the register of the day as a surname only twice and one of these was a wife. In fact, of all the Spurr who formerly populated Spurr's Corner, Oxford, William Spurr is the only male descendant.

The beautiful old home is the summer home of Mrs. Anne Weston Twitche, whose lavish hospitality knows no bounds, and who, each year, spares no pains to make this gathering enjoyable.

Many houses are furnished with old-fashioned furniture which the owner has bought and placed there, but in this house is the very furniture that James and Sukey, whose pictures hang over the large fireplace, used when they kept house here, and one meeting is not sufficient to take in the many interesting antiques scattered about the house, the spinning wheel, the fax wheel, and implements used to prepare the wool for spinning, old shoomakers' tools, old red chests, old lamps which now use electricity instead of whale oil, chairs, tables, chamber sets, grandfather clock, a beautiful old wash bowl and things much too numerous to mention.

This year Mrs. Twitche had opened an old chest and got out some things we had not seen before. One of the beds, which was covered with a marvelous old quilted white spread, lay, as if she had just dropped it there, the Falsely shawl which was part of Sukey's trousseau, while pieces of handmade linen which she spun and wove were about the room. One particularly interesting article was the pigeon net made from twice which she spun and twisted from flax grown on the farm and knitted over by hand.

A company of thirty-four gathered around the dinner table and several others came in for the afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pitts, Mrs. Dorothy Robbins and two sons made a mistake in the date and came a week too late, but as they were in the family kept them away on this day we feel that they are entitled to be reckoned among those celebrating.

The dinner, as always, was bountiful and delicious, and the company did it full justice. During the afternoon Mrs. Twitche served punch in the clan dining room, where the family tree graces the wall and interests of old and young.

William Spurr brought with him a voluminous record of the Spurr family, which he has collected over an indefinite amount of work, searching old graveyards and delving into old records galore.

There were four contests, one in croquet and one in miniature golf for the ladies, one in archery and one pitching horseshoes for the men. Mr. Gertrude Spurr Barrows won the first at croquet, Miss Ethel Calf, the second. Miss Calf won first at golf and Miss Carrie Horne, second. Delmore Robinson won first at the horse shoe pitching and Robert Weston, second, while Harold Caswell and Bert Lowell tied for the archery contest. The prizes for the men were thermos bottles and smoking sets, while the ladies drew toilet brushes of different kinds as prizes.

In the afternoon the company gathered for a short program in charge of Mrs. Harold Caswell. One feature was the telling of old family stories which have been handed down. Leon Longley told of one of the clan who was quite forward and named a large collection of tools which the neighbors borrowed to supply their own lack. One small boy came with this request: "Dad wants to borrow your square and compass, chisel and gouge, auger, plane and alze," which seemed quite complete. The program was as follows:

Mrs. Barrows, violin; Mrs. Nancy Longley, piano; Mrs. Robert Caswell, clarinet. Mr. Longley Piano Solo. Mrs. Barrows Story. Mrs. Longley followed by a trick. Jos. Weston Story. Mrs. Longley followed by a trick. Jos. Weston Story. Mrs. Longley followed by a trick. Jos. Weston Story.

William Spurr and Mrs. Barrows Piano Solo. Mrs. Longley followed by a trick. Jos. Weston Story. Mrs. Longley followed by a trick. Jos. Weston Story.

Old Fashioned Articles exhibited: Vice Press—Mrs. Clara Spurr Berry. Secretary—Mrs. Clara Spurr Berry. Treasurer—Mrs. Virginia Weston Hagar. Entertainer—Mrs. Clara Spurr Berry. Well, Mrs. Gertrude Barrows, Delmore Robinson.

It was with great sadness that we thought of one who was always one of the main pillars of the organization, but who since we gathered last year has gone from among us, Bert Weston, the kindly, able, public spirited man, who so sadly met his death last October, a victim of carbon-monoxide fumes. Two of our members have passed since last year, the other being Mrs. Margaret Jordan, a sister of Mrs. Pitts, and as we gather we miss their family ties as we in the Gods speed on their journey to the better country. Those present were:

Mrs. Lydia Spurr
Mrs. Apphia Sweetser
Mrs. Clara Spurr Berry
Mrs. Lena Connors and daughter
Miss Carrie Horne
Miss George Weston Horne
Miss Ethel B. Calf

For Norway and Mrs. Annie H. Winger. The August 10th money and passed it to C. A. Hersey at the church vestry. Announcements were made in the vestry and hall to get in touch with the members. A good sum was in the treasury. Judging the hall crowded on Friday and the cards were in place before Saturday forenoon. Treasurer Ralph B. Knight worked late Friday night to type the results and have copy ready for the next morning. Harry McKenna was elected vice president and had one busy day keeping the crowd from getting into auto mix-ups and trouble in general.

C. A. Hersey was the busiest man on the ground. He had a string of trailers, but kept smiling. Roy Wardwell assisted the secretary and was a handy chap around the office. All officials were just bubbling over with accommodation.

"Moving the fair didn't hurt our busi-

"The church dinners are a fixture and people come every year to help a good cause," he said. "But," said he, "the rush was later on starting and we had to pack them in solid."

Edward H. Brown of Norway high school agricultural department, judged the cattle and other livestock. He was on the jump Saturday and his work was satisfactory.

Harry J. B. McKeen: "Next year we will show you something on the midway. After this fair the place will be plowed, graded and seeded to raise More rocks will be taken out and other improvements made. No soggy places next year.

World's Fair

 At least one game on the midway was found nothing of the lowdown in building, they said.
 "runners" to spot easy lambs and lead them to the slaughter. The games were legitimate, but not a "cough in a car" of a chance to beat them.

HILL TOP AMUSEMENTS

Few fairs boast of an upland midway and the world's enterprise is one of the number with a treated city on a hill. Probably twelve acres can be used for fair city and a wealth of scenery for patrons who will take time to view the landscape. Old Spice, in Grafton to mountains in Albany, Stoneman, Gilead and Lovell, are in the picture.

Two midway were laid out with plenty of highway between the shows to avoid congestion of traffic. The three-act merry-go-round and a chair plane were the rides. Brown & Lynn's trained animals and an athletic show furnished the circus element. There was a lane for pony rides which attracted many small children.

Ring toss, ball throwing and a score of similar games offering prizes filled much of the space. A flashy beano outfit coined money, being a game with the strongest pull and most attractive prize. A fortune teller, advertised as a "phenomenologist", read cards and palms. The small tent was filled much of the afternoon with the least hint of hard-time in her business.

A few subscription salesmen, known in the profession as "sheet writers", hovered around the crowd near the exhibition hall. Salesmen with pen combinations and other showing jewelry had excellent business during rush hours.

Medicine vendors failed to elicit this year and were absent. Novelty and balloon sellers filled the gap with a line that drew the coin. American Legion salesmen collected coins by passing out small pennies and lapel flags.

L. M. Longley & Son, Norway were represented by Herbert Butler with a truck full of guns, ammunition and hunting equipment just right for the coming season.

The Twitcheffs of Oxford offered a nice line of oranges, pears and a variety of eatables, just right for a light lunch or refreshment.

A noisy crowd hung around the wrestling show that took place in open air within canvas side walls. A local buy from North Bridgton, named Carpenter, and Homer Truman of Norway figured in the matches against the show promoters. Women were admitted free and many took advantage of the offer and were among the best rooters for the show.

FEEDING THE CROWD

Eating places occupied many spots on the midway and near the exhibition hall. Farrar of Waterford.

TOM GREEN'S FAIR

The World's Fair has a history of sixty-three years. Mrs. Ellen Millett Davenport of Worcester, Mass., is one of the few now living who remembers the first fair. In fact a share of the honors in promoting the opening performance falls to her.

In a letter to the Advertiser last September, Mrs. Davenport gave authentic facts and we again submit extracts from that communication, believing it pertinent at this time.

"It is particularly fitting that the selection of the new grounds found to be most favorable for a real fair should be located in the field once owned by 'Tom' Green.

"When 'Tom' (always familiarly called 'Tom') was seventeen years old, he and I were standing in Uncle John's barn, ever ready with his public spirit answered, 'We can't I will clear out my rooms (used for a tailoring shop) upstairs and it will be a fine place. What have you got that you could exhibit?' I have got a pair of guinea pigs and an owl," was the answer. "Just the thing!" said Uncle John, "and now you go round and tell the boys and girls to come to see them."

"Then one day in the middle of September, 1869, a fair was held, that through the happy suggestion of our friend, 'Tom Green', has never once, from year to year, in all the sixty-three, failed to lose its interest.

"Though the leaders are at rest in the churchyard nearby the influence of their work goes on undiminished eagerly each year by children's children, who continue with praiseworthy interest to carry on the spirit that prompted 'Tom' Green to start what has developed into the far reaching name of 'World's Fair'."

WATERFORD FLAT

Dr. R. E. Hubbard has gone to Boston to take a course of study. Madame Hubbard will spend the winter in Waterford with her son's family.

Thursday evening the local 4-H Clubs gave an entertainment and exhibition of their work. Five clubs were represented. Supper was served at six o'clock, to a large crowd, after which the young people entertained with songs, demonstrations, and stories. The delegates to the camp at State Fair gave their report. The county agent was present and judged the exhibits and gave out certificates for the prizes were all first and second; there were no third prizes. William Collins will take his garden exhibit to the county contest and Ella Rice and Alice Morse will exhibit their cooking and housekeeping arts. At the last 4-H meeting, after the supper and business meeting, the club members and their leaders attended a moving picture show at Bridgton and also enjoyed a treat of ice cream.

Send money to the Advertiser office and receive your local home paper in exchange. Warren Bishop, who is attending Colby College, was in town over the week end. Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Morgan spent the week end at their camp in Greenwood.

Several young men from this section of the town attended Pomona Grange at South Waterford on Tuesday, October 4.

BOLSTER'S MILLS

Aaron Lord and son, Victor, of South Paris called on friends and relatives in this vicinity the past week. Mrs. Clara Rowe is home from her work in Bridgton.

Saturday night, Crooked River Grange met in usual form. The 4-H club gave a fine exhibition of their summer work, as well as taking a large part in the program. The music was furnished by Charles Lombard and Ethel Ingersoll.

Some of the 4-H Club exhibits are to be taken to Portland, Oct. 28, for the county exhibition. Alva Ranger, who was at the Grange, Saturday, will order the best stock of the best of the finest work of the club members to the county exhibition.

Next Saturday the Sunday school is planning to be represented at the Pleasant Pond, Sunday school convention, to be held in Bridgton.

SOUTH ALBANY

Walter Canwell and Preston Flint have finished work on the state road. Edward Holt of Norway visited his grandfather, Merritt Sawin, over the week end and attended the World's Fair at North Waterford.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollis McAllister of Fryburg are visiting his brother, David McAllister.

Ernest McAllister and two daughters, Leah and June, of East Stoneman, picked apples on John McAllister's farm here one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Lebroke were at their farm on the hill and gathered peaches, grapes, etc., there, Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Colby Robinson of Portland were at her home here over the week end and attended the World's Fair. Mr. Lord from Otisfield was at Merritt Sawin's, Saturday night, to see a Durham calf that Mr. Sawin has.

If you do not have the Advertiser, send today—two dollars a year. We were visited by a heavy frost, Friday night, following a lighter one Thursday night. The two did a thorough job on all killable plants that were not covered up for protection. As this is the first one we have had here, we feel that we have been favored by having most crops reach harvesting before they were injured by the frost.

While Walter Canwell was cutting bushes by the side of the road near his house some time ago, he cut a wild blackberry bush that measured nine feet and eight inches, this year's growth. A white rose bush at the end of Merritt Sawin's house has sent out a shoot that measures eight feet growth this season. The season seems to have been favorable for large crops in spite of the dry weather we have had. Other things have made remarkable growth.

We hear the popping of guns since the law is off partridges and imagine the deer are pricking up their ears and getting far away, out of danger.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Littlefield and two sons, George and Alfred, of Bismectown, were callers at Merritt Sawin's, Sunday afternoon.

Jason Scribner of Bolster's Mills was through here one day last week at his old business, buying wood.

Harry Haynes of South Waterford was here after young cows, recently.

Mrs. Leon Kimball was happily surprised to receive a call from her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Davis, of East Rochester, N. H., and an old friend and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dudley, of Laconia, N. H., Saturday afternoon.

Ernest Cross and granddaughter, Clara Loring, of Portland, visited his aunt, Mrs. James Kimball, and family, over the week end. Mr. and Mrs. Spring of Hunt's Corner were callers there, Sunday.

Send money to the Advertiser office and receive your local home paper in exchange. Mr. and Mrs. Ben Worden of Harrison were here last week and gathered their potatoes and other crops which they planted here last spring.
